

Expected slowdown on computers

Contributed by Yannick KREMPP
Wednesday, 01 April 2009

You may know or not, but there is a critical threat on all the computers because of the Conficker virus waking on April the 1st (by the way this is not an April fool's joke, please refer here for additional information).

To avoid most of the possible harms this virus could do, I have enabled a special group policy all over the CIF domain that will launch the latest version of Microsoft Malicious Software Removal Tool. This program starts each time a session opens and may consume quite a lot of CPU during a few minutes on old computers, thus some slowdowns may occur.

If you experience strange behaviour of the computer, please just phone or email to Yannick KREMPP.

Yannick.